FINANCIALEDGE

Who can build the most valuable company portfolio?

- Introducing a new and unique group-based challenge!
- Teams compete to acquire companies in auctions, decide their capital structure, answer technical questions to receive in-game rewards, complete financial accounts, all while experiencing domestic and global economic events.
- Can your strategy hold up when the auction doesn't go to plan, or can you capitalize on the changing economic situation?
- Both competitive and collaborative, this is a fun yet technically challenging experience.
- Our bespoke online platform enables groups to compete in real time against each other.

Prepare for your DealQuest

- Multiple games can run concurrently in your room
- Each game can have a max of 10 teams
- Your instructor will ask you to split into teams, ideally 4-6 people per team
- Assign 1 player from your team to log into DealQuest, only one device can be logged in
- Make sure everyone on your team can see the screen
- Other players can use their devices, or the classic pen and paper, to track and calculate your team's finances

Enough of this, how do I win?

- The game is split into years, each year is a full round
- In the practise year all teams will be treated equally
- Years are divided into stages, which teams complete to build cash and equity
- Teams use their cash to buy companies at the auction stage
- Purchased companies will earn teams extra cash and equity over the years
- Teams need to keep a record of their accounts, accurate bookkeeping will be rewarded
- The winner is the team with the highest equity at the end of the last year
- Your instructor will decide which is the last year
